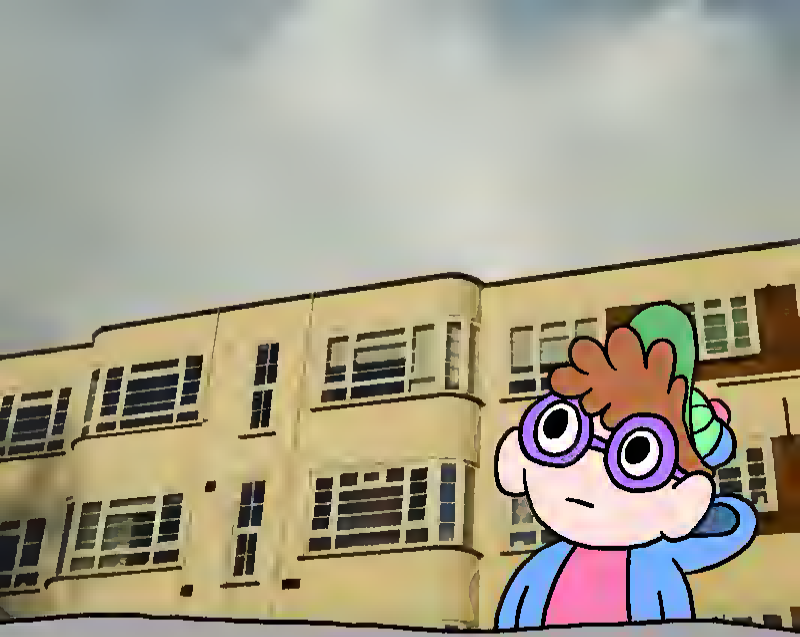
hello
rainbow



It has been raining hard.
You can tell because these peculiar

Creatures litter the streets.

You can tell the sky is blue again because the street is painted blue.

The sun is back.
You can tell because everything is shiny.

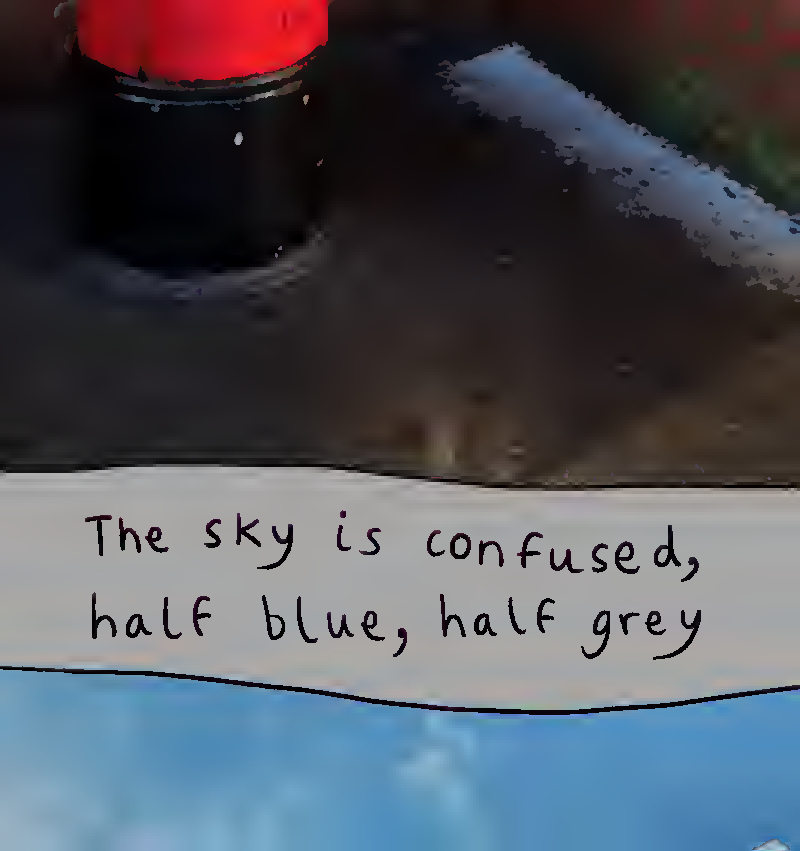
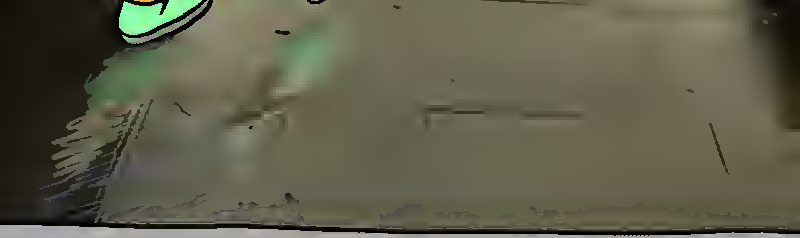
and there are strange shadows everywhere.



The sky is confused,
half blue, half grey

We walk down a grey street,
to the grey half of the world



This muddled time between rain and sun makes the sky do weird things and amongst the honking traffic, we see the sky being weird.
